

Dutch Political Psychology Meeting, Spring 2026

Program:

10:30 - 10:45: Introduction round

10:45 - 11:25 Ruth Dassonneville (Katholieke Universiteit Leuven): "Why Do Non-Rural Voters Reward Candidates Making Rural Appeals? A Four-Country Survey Experiment."

11:25 - 12:05 Jakob Kasper (University of Amsterdam): "Arousal as a Core Dimension of Affective Polarization: Theoretical Advances and Interventions"

12:05 - 13:05: Lunch (vegetarian & vegan; provided)

13:05 - 13:45 Mark Brandt (Michigan State University): "The unintended consequences of depolarization treatments"

13:45 - 14:25 Philipp Mendoza (Ludwig Maximilian University Munich): "Socratic Probing for Democratic Persuasion - How to Make the Case for Democracy"

14:25 - 15:15 Poster session & coffee break

15:15 - 15:55 Honorata Mazepus (University of Amsterdam): "Empowering leaders or trading-off democracy? A comparative study of citizens' attitudes towards liberal democracy and democratic transgressions"

15:55 - 16:35 Ashay Deshpande (University of Groningen): "Do Conversations Amplify Tipping Points? Political Talk and Collective Action in the Run-Up to the 2026 Hungarian National Elections"